Perfection waits the race of man;

But I, for one, feel no such peace.
I dare to think I have in me
Test which had better never be,
If lost before it can increase.

A whisper there, a whisper here, Confirms that hope to which we cling; But still we grasp at anything. And sometimes hope and sometimes fear. Some whisper that the dead we know Hover around us while we pray. Anxious to speak. We cannot say: We only wish it may be true.

I know a Stole who has thought,

"As healthy blood flows through his velus,
And joy his present life sustains.
And all this good has come unsought,

"For more he cannot rightly pray, Life may extend, or life may cease He bides the Issue, sure of peace, Sure of the best in God's own way.
